Aims Of 1970 Program

The Chairman of the Appomattox County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, J. P. Alvis, Jr, has listed the following aims for the recently announced Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) for 1970:

Stronger emphasis on enduring conservation practices. Addition of measures for abatement of water or air pollution. Continued encouragement for low-income farmers to do needed conservation work. Development of special conservation projects having community-wide benefits.

With the recent announcement of the program by Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin, farmers were assured of the continuation of this conservation program on farmlands. Under ACP the Federal Government shares approximately half the cost of needed conservation work with farmers who install approved measures," said the ASC Committee Chairman.

He said the fund allocation for the 1970 ACP is expected to be received soon by the County ASC Committee (s). Requests for cost-sharing under the 1970 ACP cannot be approved, Chairman Alvis said, until the fund allocations are received, however, some requests are being approved under the 1969 ACP for conservation work which will be completed before the end of the year.

More complete details on funds available, approved conservation practices, rates of cost-sharing, and signup dates for the 1970 ACP will be announced soon, ASC Committee Chairman Alvis said.

ASC Chairman Cites Soybean Facts

Soybean growers are facing both bright opportunity and tough competition according to J. P. Alvis, Jr., Chairman of Appomattox County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

He said soybeans, which have been the 'miracle' crop of American agriculture during the past 20 years, have even greater market opportunities ahead.

Chairman Alvis pointed out that soybean oil is now the most-used oil, ahead of butter and animal fats as well as other vegetable oils, such as peanut, sunflower, and cottonseed. "And soybean meal has become a mainstay for livestock and poultry feed. People around the world are eating more meat to feed their growing lives. Demand for protein meal for livestock is expected to keep increasing," he said.

"In soybeans American farmers have a crop which provides high-quality edible oil and high-quality protein meal, a 'package' crop that's hard to beat. But there is tough competition. In fact it seems to be coming from all directions at once right now," the ASC Chairman commented.

He pointed out that soybean farmers are up against competition from fishmeal, from urea which is a synthetic, from petroleum by-products which cattle can eat – competition from other farm crops such as sunflowers – even, to a degree, competition from other soybean-producting countries such as Brazil.

"In part, this is the price of success," he continued. "Twenty years ago in this country we harvested 10.5 million acres of soybeans. This year we put in 42.4 million acres – four times as much as in 1949.

"Success naturally draws competition. The challenge now to the American soybean farmer is to meet the competition – to be even more efficient, to get deeper into marketing development and export promotion, to keep price in line with world prices of competitors," Chairman Alvis stated.

The ASC Committee Chairman pointed out that the price support for 1969-crop soybeans has been set this year at $2.25 a bushel, No. 1 grade, as part of the effort to keep prices competitive.

Eye Bank To Hold Workshop

Richmond - Representatives from over 160 Lions Clubs in eastern Virginia will meet in Richmond on Sunday, October 19, to attend a workshop presented by Old Dominion Eye Bank.

The Sunday afternoon session is designed to prepare the Lions Club Eye Bank Chairmen to return to their communities and effectively transmit to their fellow citizens the eye bank message -- the critical need for donated human eye tissue for sight-restoring transplant operations.

The Lions Club provide the basis financial support for the eye bank but, more importantly, the constitute the primary contact between the eye bank and the public in the appeal for pledges of eye tissue donation, on death.

Certain types of blindness -- those caused by damaged or diseased corneas -- can be helped only by the transplantation of human eye tissue. Such tissue, if used within 48 hours after the death of the donor, can often restore sight to blind individuals. The increased success of such operations has understandably developed greater demand for human eye tissue - considerably in excess of the available supply. It is the job of the Lions Club members to convince their fellow citizens that such donations should be pledged. There is no cost to the donor or the recipient of the eye tissue and the Old Dominion Eye Bank assumes all costs of enucleation, transportation, preservation, and distribution of the tissue. State police, airlines, and bus lines regularly co-operate with the eye bank in transporation of the precious cargo.

Many Lions Clubs have announced all-out drives to increased the donor-card file maintained by the eye bank.

The Pastor Speaks

"Little Acorns and Big Oaks"

Genesis 1:12 ". . . the tree yielding fruit, seed was in itself . . ."

It's that time of the year again when the acorns begin to fall to the ground. What a tiny fruit compared to the size of the giant tree that bore it. Yet that little acorn contains as much of God's infinite design as the Halowen pumpkin. All the powers of life and of growth are there. How thankful we should be that acorns are NOT as big as a pumpkin. It would spoil one of our favorite recreations, walking and meditating in the woods. How did that acorn come into existence? It grew on the oak tree. And where did the oak tree come from? From an acorn of course! Where did it all begin? Which was first, the tree or the acorn? Some say the acorn and others say the tree. Evolution says a little dab of protoplasm. However, all of them are wrong! The Word of God tells us plainly which was first.

GOD WAS FIRST! He was before the acorn and the tree and the so called protoplasm. We read in Genesis 1:11 "And God said, let the earth bring forth the tree, bearing fruit." God first, then the tree, and then the fruit. We look at the little acorn and it speaks to us of God. In this tiny little seed we see a gigantic forest covering the earth. God created it to reproduce. It must be planted and die in order to perpetuate itself.

The Bible says in Psalms 1:3 that Christians are called trees. They are God's planting, but created to reproduce. Every Christian has the potential of multiplied increase but to do so one must die to self. It is "not by might nor by power". Increase and fruit come only by yielding ourselves. Reckoning ourselves dead unto sin and alive unto Christ. Unless the acorn is planted it will soon dry up and become useless. Only as it dies can it live. And this same process must ever be repeated, life through death. Thus, the Christian dies to death and lives anew in the Spiritual production of others. "Like a corn of wheat, Christians do their best work when they are buried out of sight."

"Until the seed is planted,
It ain't not multiply.
Nor can we see rich fruit,
Until to self we die!!!

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

ARE YOU LISTENING?

Lesson for November 2, 1969

Background Scripture: Jeremiah 7:1-26, 52.
Devotional Reading: Jeremiah 5: 22-25.

The casualty lists from the Battle of Megiddo were a crushing blow to the people of Judah. The nation staggered under the impact of this tragic news.

Necho, Pharaoh of Egypt, had sent a large army to assist the Assyrians whose empire was being eaten away, bit by bit, by the Babylonians, in order to protect the region of Haran against the Egyptians and keep them from aiding Assyria, King Josiah and his forces had engaged the invaders in a fierce battle at the fortress of Mezzido, Many soldiers on both sides were lost in this battle.

Both Reformer and Reform

Most stunning of all was the name that stood at the top of the casualty list that was hurried back to Jerusalem:

Dead: JOSIAH, King of Judah, age 39, in the thirty-first year of his reign.

Judah's noblest king, the great reformer, was dead!

And so was the reform he had established. It was not long until, without the force of his leadership, the forces of moral and spiritual decay began the work of turning to reality the terrible prophecies of the Book of Law.

Two kings, . .two sons. . . and two reformations lost! Hezekiah's reformation had been willingly ruined by his son, Manasseh. Josiah's reform was allowed to die by his indifferent son and successor, Jehoiakim, Wouldn't Jerusalem ever learn its lesson? A cross on a hill named Calvary some six centuries later seemed to answer "No."

So, the reformation of Judah was lost. Jehoiakim was not Josiah. Furthermore, sincere and well-intentioned as it had been, the reformation had not gone far enough or cut deeply enough into the life of the nation. It changed many of the external practices of the people, but it left untouched much of the spiritual decay that had accumulated through the years. It was only a repair job, when what was needed was radical surgery. As Jesus might have put it, it was like sewing a patch of new material on an old garment.

Continuing Reformation

Had he lived longer, Josiah might well have carried further and deeper his reforms. But those who followed him were indifferent and the reformation eventually died. It is not enough to seek renewal just once, whether it be in the life of the individual, the church, or the nation. We must constantly be engaged in reformation, George Webber has written: "Every age, perhaps in our time every decade, demands a new Protestant Reformation" ("God's Colony in Man's World" Abingdon: 1960).

The people of Judah who had lived during the reign of Josiah had failed to profit by the mistakes and lessons of the past. Their neighbor to the North, Israel, has refused to heed prophetic warnings from Amos and others whom God sent to them. Eventually, Israel was conquered and Unfortunately, Judah failed to profit from Israel's dead ear to the warnings of Amos and cies of Jeremiah Judah fell to the in 587 B.C., most being carried ca Judah was finished had not been enough.

In Every There have been renewal and reform own national life, back to "the Gosp in America of the century and acknow newal it brought But renewal and ref pentance must con age. It is of little the prophets of the like Judah, do not ets of today.
